Non-Display Definition

Non-Display is any method of using Nasdaq Information that involves access or use by a machine or automated Device for Trading or Analysis Usage that is not solely used for the display of information to a natural person or persons. Applications are classified as relating to either trading or analysis and the fees apply accordingly.

Rules:

1. The fees for accessing Nasdaq Canada Level 2 data on a Non-Display basis include access to Nasdaq Canada Level 1 data.

2. The fees for accessing Nasdaq Canada data on a Non-Display basis for trading purposes also cover Non-Display usage for analysis purposes.

Trading Usage

Trading Usage is defined as the use of real-time market data in programs or applications which generate orders or order recommendations in an automated manner.

Trading applications include but are not limited to:

- Smart order routers, execution algorithms, arbitrage strategies and market making strategies, workbook software and applications and third party software and applications with auto-quoting/pegging, automated conditional orders, or complex order chain building.

Analysis Usage

Analysis Usage is defined as the use of real-time market data in analysis programs or applications that may lead to or contribute to purchases, sales or other trading decisions.

Analysis applications include but are not limited to:

- Risk management systems, surveillance programs, storing of real-time market data for historical data testing purposes and calculation of derived market data.
- For avoidance of doubt, Analysis Usage includes any access or use by a machine or automated device that is not solely for display to a natural person or persons and is not used for trading purposes.
